Specifically, we consider the nature and severity of any criminal conviction identified in the report and the amount of time that has passed since the criminal conduct occurred. By way of illustration only, convictions for crimes involving injury to person or property; bodily harm to or molestation of a minor; any act which places the offender on a sex offender registry; manufacture, distribution or sale of illegal controlled substances; or any act which constitutes a threat to the health or safety of other individuals, results in substantial physical damage to the property of others, or interferes with the peaceful and quiet enjoyment of residential premises likely will constitute grounds for rejection of an application for housing, depending upon when the conviction occurred.
